First off, I can attest that the RS6 slushbox can be removed without pulling the motor. I've done it at a leisurely pace over the last few days with the car on stands. No lift. It wasn't fun, but it can be done. The build starts off assuming that the automatic is removed and everything else is in proper order.

Here's why the rs6 was cheap. Oil was literally puking out the exhaust. Crazy stuff. Got both cars in. This was a lot of jockeying around as space is tight. Plan is to swap the S6 subframe over to the rs6 so that I can put wheels on it and roll it outside, with at least hooking up the parking brake.
